ALL KINDS OF

Last Words on the Treaty.

The gentlemen who will go from this JUNT BROEIVED, EX PRINCE ALFRED province to the Dominion Parliament province to the Dominion Parliament, will find in our next weekly issue all the points raised in reference to the Washington Treaty that are likely to be raised in the parliamentary debates at Ottawa, with the exception of one. We will now mention this point. It is the preregative of the Crown, as appropriately known, to make and conclude treaties with other nations. A treaty entered into and ratified by the Crown binds the nation without the necessity of obtaining the sanction of the Lords and Commons. This is, broadly, the law of our constitution, and upon this Mr McDougall, C B, ex-governor of Manitoba, a very respectable and able, but somewhat ungoing Canadian politician based an arspectable and able, but somewhat ungenial Canadian politician, based an argument to the effect that the whole Treaty, including the fishery clauses, in fact, did come into force on the exchange of the ratifications. Mr McDougall will press this point again in debate when parliament mests. The text of the Treaty shall be ineffective ext of the Treaty hash declares certain articles of the Treaty shall be ineffective until approved by the parliament of Canada. Ratifications were exchanged subject to that condition. It was a nocessary condition, because, though the general trea y-making prerogative of the Crown is theoretically absolute, the Crown cannot of itself the Crown cannot of itself make arrangements affecting national property without the consent of the inition by its parliament. Nor can even the Imperial parliament of itself legally deal with colonial property or rights without the consent of the colonies. In the case of the fisheries, the fisheries within the limits of maritime jurisdiction were the property of the several British colonies, and it was necessary to refer any arrangement respecting them to the colonial and provincial parliaments—logislation also being, of course, required on the part of the Imperial parliament. The Treaty could make no new law on this subject; its text necessarily conformed to existing facts and law. The Crown could no more do what Mr McDougall said it had done than the President of the United States could make a treaty valid by his mere signature without the advice and consent of the Senate. If Mr McDougali examines the protocols of the Washington Treaty he will see that the treatymaking powers of the Queen and the President respectively were naturally explained and quite understood by the English and American Commissioners. He will waste the time of the House of Commons in discussing the matter,

They tell a story of two men down on Cape God, who recently obtained from the Supreme Court a perpetual injunction restraining the executors and trustees of a will from distributing or conveying any portion of the estate, and then learned, to their profound disgust, that the executors had already paid out all the legacies and distributive shares, except those falling to them. The effect of the injunction, therefore, is only to debar these plaintiffs from gotting their share of the estate.

The latest distinction that Gladstone has achieved in London is the reputa-tion universally conceded, of wearing the most shocking bad hat? of any of her Majesty's subjects. Gladstone is one of the men who can afford to do that ster (applause.)

Mr DeCosmos was called for, but wanted to hear Mr Daiby's friends demurred and the Sheriff decided that Mr DeCosmos having been first nominated must speak first.

Mr DeCosmos, with must apparent reluctance, said he was glad to see zo much interest manifested in this election. An attempt had been made in the Counsist to misrepresent him on the tariff question by saying Dr Helmeken was the originator of the modified tariff, whereas he (Mr DeCosmos) first proposed it to Dr Helmeken who moved the resolutions. He claimed that the Canadism Ministry we e plodged, by Sir Francis Hincks' dispatch, to support a modified tariff if the people of this province passed it and be wanted to see candidates returned to the local Parliament in favor of the modified tariff. On this issue he would stand or fall. There was one thing he wanted to say to the electora present, Strange to say, not one of the rump of the old Free Port Party in Victoria would vote for him or Bunster. They were all going to vote plumpers for Dalby. Therefore he (DeCosmos) called on the farmers to give him their votes. Why was it that the Plumper Riog of Victoria — the merchants — were working against him? Mr Daiby was an old political friend of his [DeCosmos] and he had avoided taking any active part against him so far, but tow was it that all the Victorians were found voting for Dalby? had avoided taking any server pair against him so far, but how was it that all the Victorians were found voting for Daly? The Civil List, the speaker said, he would go in to have repeated or modified. Free schools he would support; would favor the construction of the Pacific Railway by white men and would make large grants in support of education.

Mr Plummer—Mr DeCosmos, you are a candidate for Ottawa as well as for the local House. If both Parliaments sit at the same -which is probable-which will you at-

Mr DeCosmos—I think I will attend this Parliament.

Mr Plummer—Thack you, that's all I wished to know. [applause]

Mr Dalby in addressing the electors said:
Gentlemen—It is with pleasure I accept your nomination, and should you do me the bonor to elect me I shall use my atmost endeavors to serve you farthfully during the time I may remain in the House. You are all well aware that this is the first time I have erer taken any public part in politics, you therefore cannot expect me to be as deeply versed in politics as those who have been dabbling in them for years; but I consider that any who is endowed with good judgment and discretion can go to that House and look out for our interests equally as well as anyone who is better versid in as well as anyone who is better versid in drawn for at the Rooms of the Institute on Saturday Evening, 21st inst. The obances will be drawn from two wholes he was not sufficient to the said order.

Let us hope that the tide has taken a turn and that we may soon see the immigrants in large numbers turning their faces towards our shores and helping to build up this beautiful country. I consider that our facili ies for manufacturing are equally as good here as in any of the eastern provinces. Let us do all we can be prove that we are a progressive people and though this is the youngest province in the Dominion that ere many years pass by we will rank second to none. The one thing we do most need to develope our resources is population, and now that Canada has got hold of the reins of state let us hope that with her assistance we may devise ways and means to employ the surplus population that may find their way here until such time as they can either get hold of a piece of land or get into some prefitable employment which will keep them here. We should, as British colonists, strive to rise equal to the occasion, and now that Canada with one arch of empire spans the conti-nent, let us do all we can to assist her in her undertakings to become a great and united so doing we shall have cause for

to our adopted home—and that will give our offspring enuse to be proud of the land which gave them birth. I am in favor of a modified tariff, and maintain that if we can get it, that it, will be better suited than the Canadian factored, bound around by the American Territory and Innewing that the market we have is small and our agricultural districts are in their infancy and need protection, will do everything in her power to assist; us When we get our land in good working order and when we have a surplus the coautry, then Law we can do with less protection. I am in tayor of taxing will and and am strongly in favor of a liberal ton-sectarian school system as I consider education is of the drat importance. Should any legislation be required to fix the terminus of the Canadian Pedidic Railroad at Saquimate and Vigoria it stail receive my warm support, but I am of the opinion that those or pitalists increased will see that it is to their interest to have it three I median broom the complete with railroads rounding thought. This is untrue. If elected I will vote for the modified tariff, and so satisfied was Mr DeCosmos on this point that he asked we to stand before he asked Mr Bunster to do so. Cheers? We had a meeting at Saanach and a majority of the electors present asked ne to stand for Oltawa, I should do so. Mr. Daiby made a most temperate and dignified reply. He said he was in the candidate of any ring or cloque he was in favor of a modified turif and would vote for it. Now, if the Wharf street men thought that he was the best man, he surely would not recise their votes, neither would Mr. Decosmos, who had but acknowledged he had asked a Wharf street man to vote for him [Applause]. The Emperor William had a narrow escape on the way from Salzburg to Gastein. Soon after leaving the small village of St Johann, after leaving the small village of St Johann, where he had changed horses, he noticed that the post boy was completely drunk. The carriage went zig-zag and threatened every moment to be overturned. Though there were no precipices in that part of the road, the hilly nature of the ground makes careful driving doubly necessary, and it soon became imperative to remove the dangerous Photon from his seat. The Emperor ordered the carriage to stop, which operation having been effected with some difficulty, the adjutant and valet, his only attendants at the moment, alighted, and, taking the delinquent down, placed him by the roadside, where he was found slumbering some hours after. The valet took his place, but as they advanced the detook his place, but as they advanced the de-clivities on either side rendered it rether unclivities on either side rendered it rether unsafe driving for one unacquanted with the

It is satisfactory to k, ow that great unanmity prevails in the various sections of the colony upon the extension and improvement of roads and bridges; upon mail and telegraphic communication, as well as upon education and retrenchment, and I yield to mone in an earnest desire to see all these accomplished to their fullent extent and upon their respective merits.

As the Dominion now possesses exclusively the right to manage our postal and telegraphic allairs, I shall endeavor to secure for the Eastern Coast a bi-weekly mail steamer of a ruperior class to the one now plying on the coast,—and also hotter mail shellites in each settlement, and as I deem it to be of great importance in the interest to have the most rapid mean and the protection of the control of a telegraph line to connect the two principal cowns in the province.

The increasing importance of the commerce of the exertions to induce the Federal Government to build a lighthouse at Nanaimo at once and to creet others elsewise as Soon as possible, to ensure greater safety and certainty in awigating the Guil.

With respect to the Indians I will urge that they be settled on Keerwations, under the superincadence of the Government, be taught the arts of civilization, and thus have their social, moral and religious condition;

To the Electors of Nanaimo District,

Most of you are aiready so familiar with my political views that anything lise an extended deliceation of them would scarcely appear to be necessary upon the present cocasion; and yet, in coming before you for election, a brief exposition of the cardinal tenets of my political creed may be deemed proper.

And, drat of all, permit me to congratulate you upon the final accomplishment of Union hip netures which can hardly fail to confer substantial advantages upon the final accomplishment of Union hip netures which can hardly fail to color exposition for the people, by a wise and careful choice of Representatives, to cujuy the benetits of a continued and careful choice of Representatives, to cujuy the benetits of all covernments.

The acceptance of the Canadian Tariff appears to offer the only satisfactory as titement of a question, the continued agitation of which is calculated to seriously disturb commerce and nijuriously affect every interest. I shall, therefore, if elected, be prepared to vote for the immediate acceptance of the Canadian Tariff.

To make fitting provision for the education of the young will constitute one of the most important duties of the local administration; and I shall be prepared to advecate the immediate establishment of a system of Free Schools which will place a liberal education within easy teach of every chief in the Province.

The control to the attainment of general well-being, a system of ing farmits by which every bous fide as their coung into the country might readily acquire a Free Home stead, a tempt from textuon and from all legal process, will receive my caracet support.
